

InAcademia is a simple, one-button online service that allows online retailers to validate if a customer is a student or affiliated to an education institute in another way. It's a low cost, easy to implement service providing lightning fast, entirely secure validation. Next to its simplicity, it provides a high level of privacy protection. This new service is free to use for all users and institutions.

The InACademia Service is now officially a pilot service of GEANT. The lightning talk introduces the audience in the new and exiting service. A poster will explain in more detail how InAcademia works and how it is protecting the users privacy

For more information see: <https://inacademia.org>